North Cape is a cape on the island of Magerøya in Northern Norway. North Cape rises proud and mighty 308 metres above the Barents Sea. The steep and characteristic cliff is Europe's northernmost point. The globe monument erected in 1978 has become the actual symbol of North Cape. For several hundred years, this final frontier has attracted people from all corners of the world. In summer they come to experience the midnight sun, in winter to see the captivating northern light.
